Hurdis V. Davis-Richardson, a woman who has worked most of her life, a member of New Covenant Missionary Baptist Church in Chicago; has completed her new book, "Power of Obedience": a brilliant work written with the aim to lead anyone in finding their identity in this world and their purpose as a child of God.

Hurdis writes, "Power of Obedience is literature to enlighten. My book is not to teach so much but to encourage you that God does not give up on us. It has taken me many years to come to terms with what my life must truly be like, and that is to do God's will to live. If my book can help someone come to know their purpose in life sooner than later, then my book served its purpose."

Published by Covenant Books of Murrells Inlet, South Carolina, Hurdis V. Davis-Richardson's new book is a source of enlightenment for every individual who are still in doubt and full of uncertainties, for those who still don't know their purpose, for those who are lost, and for those who want to be closer to God. This book can be a light that will help lead the way towards wisdom and faith.

Readers can purchase "Power of Obedience" at bookstores everywhere, or online at the Apple iTunes store, Amazon, or Barnes and Noble.
